

Whiting American Hackle

March 22, 2004

Attention, Saltwater Tier/Anglers!

When I was doing my thing at the winter shows, I was deluged with inquiries about the feathers I was using for these and other saltwater patterns. They are now available through dealers offering Whiting Farms feathers, the product name being American Hackle. The colors in the two bunker photos are white and beige, respectively. They are available in cape (neck), saddle, and schlappen. Dyed colors are also available.

The flat-wing fly in the third photo was tied with long saddle hackles, also from Whiting Farms. A full range of natural and dyed colors is available.

Whiting American Hackle continued

Tom Whiting assures me that supplies are plentiful, so if your shop doesn't have them in stock, orders will be filled promptly. For more information, check their web site at www.flytyervariant.com.

For other Fly Tying Projects, please visit my website at www.dicktalleur.com. You will also find information about past and upcoming guided fishing trips, my books and instructional videotapes, recommended products, and upcoming classes and shows.

